

NAVAL FIGHT OFF CHEFOO ON THURSDAY

Result of Battle is Not Yet Known.

Blockading Fleet Captures a Junk Loaded With Provisions—The War News of the Day.

London, Oct. 6.—(Bulletin)—A dispatch to the Central News from Chefoo, dated 2:30 a. m., October 6, says that a big naval battle is proceeding outside the harbor of Chefoo. It is thought that the Port Arthur fleet made a sortie to reach Chefoo harbor, and that the Russians encountered the Japanese squadron which has been blockading Port Arthur. The report says further that all the firing ceased about 4 a. m. today.

An Official Dispatch.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 6.—Lieut. General Sackharoff today reports officially on the skirmishes between the Russian and Japanese troops near Mukden. His dispatch reads:

"Tuesday passed quietly. There is no change in the situation. Skirmishes occurred at Muhlupin between our outposts and four companies of Japanese infantry and the squadron of cavalry. Our forces first retired, but on the arrival of the cavalry reinforcements, an outflanking movement was ordered, compelling the Japanese to retire to Tadusampo, with considerable loss."

Japs Capture a Junk.

Tokyo, Oct. 6.—(Bulletin)—The Japanese fleet has captured a junk, laden with provisions endeavoring to enter Port Arthur harbor. Evidence was found aboard the vessel that a fleet of the junks had been organized to run the blockade of the port from the vicinity of Tsing Tau, in Kaio Chou bay. Notwithstanding the Japanese vigilance many junks have succeeded in reaching the Russian lines. It is supposed that ammunition has also been smuggled into the port in this way.

Dash Made by Fleet.

London, Oct. 6.—A news agency here late last night sent out a dispatch dated Tokyo, October 5, saying: "It is reported that the Russian squadron made a sortie from Port Arthur today, and that a great naval battle occurred."

No details are given.

Major General Orloff has been assigned to duty on the general staff, thus ending the reports that he would be tried by court-martial and dismissed from the army, the fact being that General Orloff was simply deprived of his command by General Kuropatkin on his failure to carry out his orders at Liao Yang.

No fresh news has been received from Mukden. According to the war office's information quiet continues there.

Grand Duke Boris, a cousin of Emperor Nicholas, leaves St. Petersburg in 10 days to rejoin the army.

Lieutenant General Gripenburg, who is to command the Second Manchurian army, was received in audience by the emperor, but he declined to be interviewed and returned to Vilna. The general will leave for the front during the present month.

Want Revenge for Liao Yang.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—A dispatch to the Lokal Anzeiger from Mukden says: "General Kuropatkin has expressed a firm determination to avail himself of this favorable season of the year for military action. Everything points to a coming revenge for Liao Yang. The officers and men hope that the period of retreats is past and that they will be led against the enemy. The Japanese undoubtedly intended Sept. 27 to attack in three columns from the collieries at Yentai, along the imperial road, but they desisted when they discovered that the Russians fronting them numbered 60,000 men." The correspondent of the Lokal Anzeiger gives a summary of the ostensible strength of the opposing Japanese armies, which, according to his calculations, total 144,000 infantry, 6,500 cavalry and 648 guns.

Kingston, Island of St. Vincent, Oct. 6.—A peculiar phenomenon, a dust cloud, overshadowed the island Oct. 2 for a whole day. It was accompanied by intense heat, giving the impression that the Soufriere volcano on this island was erupting. No detonations were heard. An investigation has since been made by a party which ascended the mountain. They report that there are no indications of eruption. Fine dust also fell. This is supposed to be from Mont Pelee, island of Martinique, which destroyed the town of St. Pierre, with the loss of 30,000 to 40,000 lives, in May, 1902.

TEST OF TEA

As a Food Value to be Made by Twenty London Doctors During a Two Weeks' Fast.

London, Oct. 6.—A peculiar temperature test, under the auspices of the medical attendant to the royal family, will begin on October 16, when 20 prominent men will begin a fast to demonstrate the food value of tea. During the two weeks which the fast will last the only food the doctors will take every 24 hours will be a half pint of tea and a half pound of dry crackers.

The doctors will fast under strict supervision of a committee which has been elected to see that no food is smuggled to them, and at the end of the fast one of the participants will apply to a life insurance company for a policy of $5,000 to show clearly that he is in perfect physical condition.

The tea which will be supplied to the fasting physicians will be made in a newly invented teapot which does away with all the nervousness which tea is generally supposed to cause by an ingenious contrivance which absolutely prevents the extraction of tannin.

STORE FIRED

Two Men Suffocated by Leaders of the Black Hand Society, Again Active in West Virginia.

Huntington, W. Va., Oct. 6.—The Black Hand society is active again, this time on Leap Creek, where the store owned by Louis Perico, an Italian, was burned and he and a man named Willard were suffocated to death.

Letters found on Perico's dead body show that the society had threatened to kill him unless he left $500 in a designated place near his store.

The letters were written in Italian and were translated by a laborer. The sheriff and a posse of citizens are scouring the country for the band of criminals, who are operating extensively among their fellow countrymen.

It is believed by the authorities that after having been routed out of the Deepwater railroad camps, where several weeks ago they killed five Italian laborers, the leaders of the society went to Leap Creek. Perico owned one of the big stores there.

Miners have found that the store was set on fire, and that Perico and Willard, who occupied a room in the building, had been suffocated by the smoke.

The miners, upon reaching the fire, discovered that a large amount of Italian newspapers, saturated in oil, had been placed under the storeroom and a match set to it.

ARCHBISHOP

Attends Big Meeting of Episcopaleans at Boston—Urged Broadening of Church's Sphere.

Boston, Oct. 6.—The archbishop of Canterbury and bishops from many parts of the world attended the opening session of the general triennial convention of the Episcopal church here. Bishop Doane welcomed the archbishop of Canterbury, and then devoted a large part of his sermon to the divisions in Christendom. He discussed the barriers which separate the Anglican church from other denominations and how they might to some extent be broken. While the recognition of papal supremacy was impossible, the bishop thought the church might readily recognize the primacy of the bishop of Rome, because of the antiquity of the Roman see. He urged a broadening of the church's sphere.

Policeman's Suicide.

Divorced From a Rich New Yorker—Neither Appeared in Court When Decree Was Granted.

New York, Oct. 6.—Elida May West, a Denver beauty, has been granted a divorce by Justice Blanchard from Dr. Witt Clinton West, scion of an old and aristocratic family of Lowell, Fenton county, a Yale man and a member of many New York clubs. Under the decree she may marry again.

This is the famous divorce case in which neither the wife nor husband appeared in court.

West inherited a large fortune from his father, the late C. D. West, and went to Denver, where he started the Vulcan Iron Works. He spent much of his time in New York, and last spring his suspected wife put on his track detectives, who gathered evidence of his having found an attractive young woman on West Thirty-Ninth street.

Alimony of $40 a week was granted to Mrs. West, and because of failure to pay it a receiver was appointed for West's property in this state.

A LARGE CROWD ADDRESSED BY CHAMBERLAIN

Says Land Values Have Decreased Greatly.

And Agriculture Has Been Crippled—Fewer Laborers Than in 1851—Millions Are Underfed.

London, Oct. 6.—In an auditorium specially constructed to accommodate large crowds Joseph Chamberlain reopened his fiscal campaign at Luton, in Bedfordshire. The capacity of the auditorium was taxed to its utmost.

Mr. Chamberlain began his speech with an eloquent tribute to the late Sir William Vernon Harcourt, and said there was no member of parliament, regardless of party, but would sincerely and deeply regret the passing of that great political leader. On the fiscal proposition Mr. Chamberlain said it was not a party question, but affected every vital interest of the country. He dwelt at considerable length on the agricultural situation and painted a gloomy picture of present conditions, predicting that there is worse to come. He said agriculture had been crippled and land values shrunk by hundreds of millions. The capital of farmers, he said, had fallen $1,000,000,000. There are 1,000,000 fewer laborers in the country now than there were in 1851, and 12,000,000 people are underfed, while the people of America, Germany and other foreign countries are prosperous and surpassing Great Britain in every line of trade and business. He said that to deny existing conditions was impossible, and to ignore them would be criminal.

Mr. Chamberlain said that Mr. Balfour's statement concerning the colonies marked a distinct advance, but Mr. Balfour should not delay; he should call the conference at once and see what terms could be made with the colonies.

ROUND

Like an Orange or a Ball is the Earth and the Amish Will Have to Bear It.

Ravenna, O., Oct. 6.—As a result of the trial and conviction of the Amish father in Troy who refused to send his children to any but an Amish school, the people of that sect have promised to abolish the school in which their offspring were taught to believe that the world is flat. Hereafter they will obey the law by sending their sons and daughters to recognized schools.

Among other religious regulations for Amish, who believe in an absolute and literal interpretation of the Bible, is to take a legal oath because Christ said "Swear not at all." They also refuse to arise while affirming.

At the close of the trial R. S. Webb, of Garretttsville, attorney for the Board of Education, summoned the Amish leaders together, and, in a plain, but kindly talk, told them they must obey the law or go to jail; that their schools were subterfuges to evade the law, and that it was sinful and unlawful for them to deprive their children of the school privileges furnished by the state.

They expressed approval and promised compliance.

EARNINGS $18,000,000

Steel Corporation Will Meet October 25 to Act on Dividend.

New York, Oct. 6.—The quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the United States Steel Corporation will be held October 25. At that time the board will act on the dividend for the quarter, will make public the net earnings for the quarter ending September 30, and will announce the dividend on the books.

The board will declare the regular dividend of 1 1/4 percent on the preferred stock for the quarter. This has not officially been passed upon yet, but the net earnings, in excess of $18,000,000 for the three months, justifies the continuance of the regular dividend, as it can be paid without drawing upon the surplus.

A PRETTY GIRL HANGS HERSELF IN A STABLE

At First it Was Believed She Was Murdered.

Confession of Her Brother Made on Thursday While Police Were Scouring the Country.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—From a confession of John Harmoning, brother of Minnie Harmoning, the pretty 17-year-old girl who was believed to have been murdered in a barn at her father's farm, near Palatine, Ill., it developed today that the girl had ended her own life by hanging from a beam in the barn. The boy, who is 20 years old, told his father today that when he and two younger children returned to the barn from the field, they found the girl hanging from a beam by rope, dead. They took the body down, he said, hid the rope and told the story which led to the theory that she had been murdered. To substantiate the story, the boy went to the left of the barn and produced the rope with which he asserted his sister killed herself. Posses have been scouring the country for the supposed murderer of the girl for hours.

RUBBER HOSE

Was Used by the Parochial Teacher to Beat a Pupil, and He Was Fined for the Job.

It is alleged that Schermeyer whipped the lad with a piece of rubber hose. The lad's screams were heard by his mother, who resides opposite the school, and she rushed into the building and attacked Schermeyer, finally getting possession of the child and then causing the teachers' arrest. The case has created a sensation in Lutheran church circles.

Schermeyer came here a year ago from Woodville, O., where he was graduated from the Lutheran Normal school.

Professor Von Schroen explained that a patient suffering from consumption could live for years in apparent health, but under favorable circumstances the germ of the disease would become active and destroy the lung tissues.

MISSING

From Columbus With Some of His Employer's Funds—Schoenhorn's Tristly Flew the Coop.

Columbus, O., Oct. 6.—The police are looking for Carl A. Eldridge, who disappeared from the city Saturday of last week. For several months Eldridge has been employed as book-keeper for E. M. Schoenhorn & Co., who operate cigar stores in all of the big hotels in this city.

If Eldridge is located he will have to answer the charge of embezzlement preferred by his employers. It is charged that he got away with close to $1,000 of the money intrusted to his care. He is alleged to have got the money by taking from the amounts to be deposited.

Eldridge leaves a young wife and a child, and they are almost distracted. He was employed at the Neil house headquarters and was well known to the patrons of that place.

The matter was placed in the hands of detectives, but they have not been able to get track of him. It is learned that he has been gambling. Eldridge was at one time employed as book keeper at the Standard Oil company branch here and in the old Reinhard bank.

LIKE A METEOR

The Fiery Furnace Shot Down the Steep Hill in the Wake of a Crowded Trolley Car.

New York, Oct. 6.—A ten-ton rolling blast furnace filled with hot iron used for the welding of joints of trolley tracks was the cause of an exciting ride for a car load of people in Newark, N. J. The furnace became unmanageable on the top of a steep hill and started down with rapidly increasing headway in the wake of a trolley car bound toward the center of the city.

The motorman put on full speed, but the mass of iron and fire gained steadily. When it seemed that a disastrous collision was inevitable, the car crew and ten passengers, several of whom were women, held a hurried consultation and decided that the only chance to save their lives was in jumping. Several leaped off, but the crew and two women, who had fainted, remained aboard.

After the race had gone on for a quarter of a mile with the furnace steadily gaining, the runaway machine swerved and struck an oncoming car. The collision was terrific, but although the front end of the car was demolished, the passengers escaped serious injury.

Woodward was mayor four years ago and on account of undignified conduct gave the city unpleasant notoriety. At one time, while mayor, he wrote his resignation to take effect the next time he was intoxicated. Woodward's strength was mainly with the laboring elements. His plurality was 158.

From the time one mounted the first stairway it took just an hour to reach the main reception room, where Judge Parker and Judge Herrick were stationed. The crowd was kept moving and it was three hours before it diminished in the least.

SUPREME COURT

Is Asked by Stockman to Prevent Perry County Judge from Declaring Him Insane.

The supreme court clerk received Wednesday, a most unusual petition. It came from Wm. H. Stockman, who signs himself a citizen of Perry county, and invokes the court "in the name of God, the Father, God the son and God the Holy Ghost," to interfere and prevent Charles Hymnus, probate judge of Perry county, from deciding his case without a trial. He styles his case W. H. Stockman vs. Charles Hymnus.

The petition is an additional chapter in the vagaries of Stockman, who has announced himself as candidate for President, Governor and other high offices in the last six or seven years. He announced himself as candidate for governor last week and was about to start for St. Louis to open his campaign when his wife concluded it was time to stop his waste of money in this insane prospect, and had him arrested on a lunacy warrant. It is delirium from Judge Hymnus insanity court that he asks at the hands of the supreme court.

THE REPUBLICAN FROST.

The Dalzell-Smyser Republican rally in Music Hall Wednesday night was a decided frost. Now this is not said in any partisan spirit but is given as a fact which will be recognized and vouched for by everyone who attended the meeting.

Congressman Dalzell of Pennsylvania is a man who has gained national prominence by his advocacy of a high protective tariff, and as a champion of the trusts during his congressional career, and of course there was some curiosity to see him, as was evidenced by the presence of a considerable proportion of Democrats who went there for that purpose alone. After Dalzell finished his speech the great majority of the small crowd left the hall, so that when M. L. Smyser, candidate for congress in this district, began his harangue he was speaking to many an empty seat.

Those who left the hall after Dalzell's speech included many prominent Republicans who remembered Smyser's action in "throwing down" Dr. C. D. Watkins when the doctor was a candidate to the Republican National convention, before the same convention that nominated the Wooster man. Smyser was a professed supporter of Watkins in pursuance of a promise given to Governor Herrick, who wanted Watkins to go to the National convention. This promise Smyser violated, and was forced to make his peace with the governor. But Smyser has not made peace with the Licking county friends of Dr. Watkins. The hundreds of friends of the popular Etna physician remember this and will get their work in at the polls in November.

The fact is well known at Republican headquarters at Columbus that Smyser will run behind his ticket in two counties in the district, and one of these counties is Licking.

It is fitting for Dalzell, the Pittsburg Congressman, who spoke at the meeting of the Newark Republicans last night to take the stump for Roosevelt, since the trusts are lining up so solidly for his election. For sixteen years in succession Dalzell has been the plant root of trusts in Congress and has a record in that regard second to none in the country. But the frost that Dalzell received from his small but chilly audience is a plain index of what the people think of trusts and their champions. The Newark fizzle of last night is simply a sample of Republican meetings everywhere.

Roosevelt's Bad Faith.

Immediately following the assassination of President McKinley, the greatest praise bestowed upon President Roosevelt by the Republican press of the country was due to his solemn promise to continue the policies of his predecessor. The President and some of his political representatives still have the nerve to point to this promise and assert that it has been kept.

They know, however, that in the most conspicuous policy which McKinley advocated just prior to his death this promise has been steadily and ruthlessly violated. The policy was outlined in the dead President's Buffalo speech advocating a modification of tariff schedules in behalf of a broader American foreign trade, and reciprocity as a permanent condition between the United States and other nations, and not a mere expedient. President Roosevelt has never raised his hand to promote this policy of McKinley. The martyred President had lived long enough to see that his former tariff ideas, if they had served a good purpose, were no longer sufficient to insure the prosperity of the country. He saw also that monopoly represented by the organization of vast trusts had succeeded in making high tariff rates the foundation of extortion and robbery. Still believing that the protection idea had accomplished great good, McKinley acknowledged that its mission was practically over and openly advocated its modification to secure freer trade relations between this country and the world at large.

Mr. Roosevelt has not kept the faith in reference to the policy outlined in McKinley's Buffalo speech. It was the most important policy involved in his promise. Republicans who look back to McKinley as a safe leader in all industrial and commercial matters, must regard Roosevelt as an unsafe one, because the present President has followed a course directly opposed to the industrial and commercial policy suggested by McKinley in what were almost his last words.

William J. Bryan said in his speech at Springfield, Mo.: "Judge Parker voted for me when the money question was an issue." Mr. Bryan, therefore, states that he has the very best of reasons for voting for Judge Parker when the money question is not an issue. Mr. Bryan emphasizes this in every speech he is making in this campaign, and he is doing all he can to accomplish Judge Parker's election.

Gov. Franklin Murphy, the Republican chief executive of New Jersey, is fearful that his state will land in the Democratic column this fall. The Governor expressed his fears that the state will not only go for Parker, but that nearly all the Congressmen to be elected will be Democratic. The excessive and burdensome taxes levied by the recent Republican Legislatures is one of the leading issues of the state, and Governor Murphy admits that he fears the result.

Senator J. D. Chalmers, the minister of Panama to this country, has given out an interview in which he charges the United States government with oppression, and inferentially the President, Admiral Walker, president of the canal commission, John Barrett, minister to Panama, and others with bad faith. It is said that no notice of the interview will be taken at Washington because the President does not want to stir up the Panama muss at present. It is evident that the conspirators in Panama who, with the aid of the United States government, carried into effect the conspiracy which deprived Colombia of her rights and set up a new republic are not finding their relations with the United States as pleasant as they have anticipated. The canal commission has gone ahead with plans which the Panama rulers think encroach upon their rights, and their protests have received little consideration. Therefore it is that the minister of the republic has been moved to indignation. Of course the administration will keep as mum as possible on the whole subject until after the election.

THINKS NEW YORK IS LOST

Congressman Bede Says, However, Republicans Don't Need State.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Congressman J. Adam Bede of Minnesota, dropped into National Republican headquarters and plunged the assembled spellbinders into gloom by saying, "I believe New York is lost."

"But we do not need New York," said he by way of a cheer-up.

"Is it your opinion the Democrats will carry New York?" Mr. Bede was asked.

"Conditions are very doubtful there," he replied. "At least, they were when I was cast a few days ago. The Democrats are working up into the country. They realize that they will have to reduce the Republican strength up the state if they are to win the state. They are organizing down to the precinct and working like beavers."

New Jersey and Connecticut always go the same way that New York does in Presidential elections. And the way New York goes always elects the President.

JUDGE PARKER DINES WITH W. R. HEARST

Congressman Tells Nominee Prospects in the West Are Bright.

New York, Oct. 6.—Judge Parker, Wm. F. Sheehan, Thomas Taggart and Congressman Wm. R. Hearst had dinner together last evening at the Hotel Seville. Mr. Hearst had just returned from an extended tour of the west and others desired to get from him his impression of Democratic prospects in the western states.

Mr. Hearst gave them encouraging reports and discussed the phases of the campaign as regarded by the Democrats in the states lying west of the Mississippi river. Mr. Sheehan and Mr. Taggart went over the situation in the east and they agreed that the outlook was exceedingly encouraging. At the close of the dinner Mr. Taggart said:

"We reviewed the situation in every phase. Everything is very satisfactory. That is all I care to say."

A PRINCESS WHO IS A PILGRIM.

Princess Alice, wife of Prince Frederick von Schoenburg-Waldenburg and daughter of Don Carlos, pretender to the Spanish throne, is now making a pilgrimage with her husband on foot to Rome to seek the pope's forgiveness for having once obtained a divorce from a civil tribunal in violation of the tenets of the church. The royal couple were married in 1897 and were divorced by the house of lords of Saxony last year. They have since become reconciled.

FROSTY AND DISAPPOINTING WAS THE REPUBLICAN MEETING

At Music Hall Wednesday Night, Where Dalzell and Smyser Spoke to Slim Audience.

Talk about political cold waves! Frost, white, hoar, congealed on the windows of the Music Hall Wednesday night and icicles formed and clustered in weird, fantastic shapes on the proscenium and even beneath the footlights. The occasion was the much-advertised coming of Dalzell and Smyser to address the Republicans of Licking county.

John W. Dalzell is the vaunted leader of the Republican delegation in Congress from the Keystone state, the attorney in the halls of legislation of the grandees and protectors of an exorbitant tariff. There were probably 200 Republicans present at the meeting to hear him. They had come expecting to be both instructed and entertained. They departed with disappointment, keen and bitter, written on every feature.

It was 8 o'clock when the speakers entered the hall and it was some minutes later that the audience was apprised of their presence.

After a painful pause in the preliminaries a colored quartette was drafted into service and with a couple of songs "set the ball a rolling."

It was at this juncture that Mr. L. C. Russell, secretary of the Republican executive committee, who had been chosen chairman of the meeting by himself and Earl Murphy, in a glowing introductory in which he took numerous falls out of the Queen's English, told what a great man Mr. Dalzell really is. He told about Dalzell meeting Bourke Cochran in debate some time or other in the house of representatives, but omitted to state that following that encounter there was not enough left of Mr. Dalzell to merit extended inquiry by the coroner.

Mr. Dalzell having once been fairly introduced the gentleman from Pennsylvania proceeded in a shrill, piping voice to give a recitation of the history of the country for the past 50 years as viewed from a Republican standpoint. Ascribing all the blessings of prosperity and progress to Republican legislation and none to the natural resources of the country or the enterprise and intelligence of the people, he shuffled through a mass of verbiage and political persiflage that made the assembled faithful look at each other in something akin to disgust. As Mr. Dalzell proceeded the shuffling of feet, the squirming of his auditors on the pine planks and the dark and disappointed looks of those who had come expecting something, grew apace and it was a notable fact that the only portions of his long, dull, hyperbolic harangue, that were cheered were his frequent promises of a speedy conclusion. One by one those present began to sink away from the ordeal to which they were being subjected and by the time Mr. Dalzell closed, about 137 of the 200, or little more, who were originally present, remained.

Dalzell finally quit after repeated promises to "let up." The colored quartet was brought into requisition and Smyser was presented to the audience.

It would be difficult to describe Smyser's effort. It is like has seldom been seen or heard in Newark. He told of how he was finally forced to yield to the importunities of the Republicans of the district to accept the nomination they had stored up for him for years, of his struggles to escape it and finally how, brought to bay at New Philadelphia, the honor had been thrust upon him and he was "it."

Only a stern sense of patriotic duty, of duty to his party, to his country and to mankind made him accept. Few more thrilling struggles of one lone man against destiny and fate have ever been told than the one told in pantomime Wednesday night by Judge Smyser.

Smyser's speech showed that he is mighty in action, large in words but at a strange discount when it comes to ideas.

It was nearly 11 o'clock when the faithful handful that had submitted to Stryser's punishment made their way out through the frosty atmosphere of Music Hall into the warmer air of the street and the first great rally of the Republican campaign was at an end.

SUGAR LOWER

THE OHIO WHOLESALE GROCERS' ASSOCIATION

Make a Reduction in the Jobbing Price and Decision is Announced This Morning.

As a result of the meeting of the Ohio Wholesale Grocers' Association held in Columbus this week a reduction in the jobbing price of sugar was brought about, which was decided Thursday.

For a period of some months a basis for selling sugars to the retail grocer has been in effect that allowed a small margin to the jobbing trade. Under this agreement, however, there has been considerable friction, some jobbers not living up to their agreement. Deviations of different degrees were continually being made, and it caused much dissatisfaction among the leading jobbers in the state that the meeting held on Tuesday was called to agree, if possible, upon a selling price which would be uniform throughout the state, and would enable the retail grocer to buy his sugars at the same price, regardless of the market in which his purchases were made. After a full and fair discussion it was thought best to make a sweeping reduction in the prices.

This was done and a new price list was issued by the president of the Ohio Wholesale Grocers' Association, taking effect on Thursday morning, which shows a reduction in the selling prices to the retail trade of thirty points, which is equivalent to about one quarter of one cent per pound. This drastic action, while leaving the jobber no profit was thought necessary by the officers of the association to bring the recalcitrant jobbers into line, as it leaves no margin whatever for secret evasions or cutting to be done.

The board of directors took this action unanimously in the hope that it would place the sugar business on a better foundation, and that in the future a better margin of profit could be established. This price is not fixed for any definite period, and of course is subject to the fluctuations of the market.

The position of sugars at present is very strong. The markets in general all over the world for raw sugars is very firm. Of course our domestic crop will soon be put on the market. The Louisiana crop bids fair to reach about the same proportions as the crop of 1903, while the beet crop of the United States, it is estimated, will fall considerably short.

AMUSEMENTS

SI PLUNKARD.

Mr. J. C. Lewis will make his bow to an audience on Monday night at the Auditorium. He will be supported by a capable company in The Rural Comedy "Si Plunkard," a four act comedy of New England farm life. The action of the piece opens on the farm of the Pages, at Fairview, Conn., which is invaded by Robert Denny, a bogus stock speculator, who tries to inveigle old Farmer Page into stock speculation and ruin him, in order to force the old man to consent to his marriage with his beautiful daughter, who he has discovered is to become an heiress at the death of her uncle. He introduces the old farmer to an accomplice in the person of Moses Wilson, a Jew money lender, who tries to secure a mortgage on the old farmer's home. Michael Crowe an Irish inventor, appears on the scene, selling his gazepophons, and he and Si Plunkard, the farmer hero, become fast friends, and foil the villain and the wily Jew in their attempts to ruin the old farmer. During the action of the comedy a number of up-to-date specialties will be introduced by the big company of comedians. The comedy having been re-written this season will be an entirely new version of this successful rural play, making it one of the strongest up-to-date farce comedies before the public. The company carries its own orchestra.

"THE RAVEN."

Edgar Allan Poe is the best known of American poets, both at home and abroad. Poe has more real lovers than any other poet who has lived for many years. His life was intensely dramatic, and his love story has been told by Mr. George C. Hazelton, Jr., in a play called "The Raven," which will be the attraction at the Auditorium next Wednesday night. "The Raven," as Mr. Hazelton has written it tells purely a love story. Mr. Hazelton is the author of "Mistress Nell," but his Poe as depicted in "The Raven" is said to outclass anything he has ever done. The play itself has been called brilliant, and undoubtedly stands as a great literary work. There is much discussion regarding the personality of Poe, and this play of "The Raven" cannot help but make a stir. It is not in any sense morbid. It contains many patches of brilliant wit such as Mr. Hazelton has come famous for in "Mistress Nell." The part of Edgar Allan Poe will be played by Frederick Lewis, who made a sensation in New York a year ago by his performance in "Ghosts." Mr. Lewis is temperamentally well suited to the character of Poe and is said to give an ideal performance. "The Raven" has been staged by Henrietta Crossman, and this alone speaks volumes for the worth of this attraction. Certainly, no attraction that comes to the local theatre this season, is worthy of more patronage than "The Raven," and the names connected with it stands for all that is best in the theatre. Local theatre goers need have no hesitancy in going to see Mr. Hazelton's newest play. New York is waiting for this play very eagerly, and it will be some satisfaction to local theatre goers to say they have seen it when the big success comes in New York.

THEATRE GOERS NOTICE.

After October 6 no children under 10 years of age will be admitted into the Auditorium unless they hold a children's ticket, which can be purchased at the box office. Children over ten years of age must be provided with reserved seat tickets. Children in arms will positively not be admitted to the Auditorium.

DOG IS DEAD

WHILE HIS MASTER IS SERIOUSLY INJURED.

Mr. Houseworth Electrocuted His Canine on Third Rail but Was Himself Hurt.

Lancaster, O., Oct. 6.—W. D. Houseworth, living on the outskirts of town, is seriously, if not fatally hurt, and his dog is dead.

The dog was the primary cause of the injuries, and the third rail system of the Toledo Valley Traction company furnished the energy necessary for the death of the dog and the injury of Houseworth.

The man wanted to get rid of the canine, so he wrapped a wire about the dog's neck, so the story goes, tied a piece of iron to the wire and then pitched the dog across the tracks of the interurban so as to get a perfect contact.

He did. The dog died instantly, and the wire whipping in a snake-like coil struck Houseworth's leg. The man who had been witnessing the electrocution of the troublesome dog, sank down as if hit in the head with an ax, and bystanders rescued him by throwing a rope about Houseworth and pulling him away.

The leg is badly burned and Houseworth got an awful shock. The doctors do not know yet how serious the trouble is, but the man is in bad shape.

His Postponed Voyage

[Copyright, 1904, by Ethel Holland.]
"Mother, dear, there is something I wish to tell you," began Sue Emerson. "Last evening Sam Congdon asked me to be his wife, and I have promised to answer him at Mrs. Mynter's reception. I don't know what to say to him. I am awfully fond of Sam, but then there is Harvey Merritt. He is so clever, and I am sure he likes me. I wish I could make up my mind."

Mrs. Emerson stroked her daughter's hand. "You must do your own choosing, dear," she said. "There is no one that could do that for you, but my heart has gone out to Sam."

That afternoon Sue called on her friend, Mrs. Curtis. She found her with a most disconsolate expression on her face.

"My dear Jessie," cried Sue, "what is the matter?"

"I have a serious problem to solve," she answered. "Jack gives a stag party tonight, and about ten minutes ago the maid came to me and said her mother was seriously ill, and she must go to her at once. Now who can I get to serve these men tonight?"

Sue meditated. "I have it," she said at length. "I will be your maid tonight."

"You?" gasped Jessie. "Sue nodded."

"But," exclaimed Mrs. Curtis, "Harvey Merritt and Sam and other men that you know are going to be here." "It will be such a lark, Jessie. You will remember I was a maid in those amateur theatricals which Mrs. Mynter gave. I have my costume now, the wig, and the liquid to stain my face. Consider it settled, Jessie. No one will ever know me, and you will see what an efficient maid I can be."

"If they don't recognize you, I shall be extremely thankful to you for helping me out of this strait," was Jessie's answer.

"It will be great fun," Sue declared, "but you mustn't tell a soul, not even Jack, until the evening is over."

Evening came and with it the new maid. As she entered the room where Mr. and Mrs. Curtis sat Jessie said to her husband:

"Oh, Jack, Alice was called home this afternoon by the serious illness of her mother. This is Mary, who takes her place this evening." And Jack, looking at the dark-skinned, black-haired girl before him, did not for a minute suspect she was dainty Sue Emerson.

While waiting on the guests the new maid gave a start at the turn the conversation had taken.

"Well, Merritt," Curtis was saying, "you and Sam are the only bachelors among us tonight."

"And I won't remain one for long," answered Merritt.

The maid was passing him salted almonds, and her hand shook a trifle.

"I have made up my mind to ask a certain young lady to be my wife, and she has given me reason to believe she will not refuse."

The men looked up in surprise. "Who is the girl?" asked Curtis.

"Miss Emerson."

The dark blue eyes of the maid flashed as she filled the punch glasses.

"A toast to you," a young friend of Merritt's cried. "Here's to your success in winning Miss Emerson."

The guests raised their glasses and drained them, all save Sam Congdon, whose glass but touched his lips. A man at the end of the table called out:

"Who would have guessed that our cynical friend had fallen in love?"

"Of course I am marrying for love," Merritt retorted, but his tone was tinged with sarcasm.

"You'll get the money along with the love this time," some one ventured to remark.

Merritt shrugged his shoulders. His manner was near to insolence.

The maid's hand trembled visibly as she poured the wine. She placed a glass at Sam's plate, noting the pallor of his face as she did so. Her blue eyes grew darker still as Sam arose and said:

"Won't some of you fellows drink with me? Tomorrow night at this time I'll be on my way to Europe."

"Why, how is that?" some one asked.

A wave of color spread over Sam's face for an instant as he deliberately told the falsehood.

"My father wishes me to look after his business in Liverpool."

All drank to his prosperity. Only one present knew the real reason for this sudden voyage. The new maid blushed furiously under her stained cheeks.

At 10 o'clock the following morning Sam stood waiting for the cab that was to take him to the wharf. His trunk, strapped and labeled, stood in the hall. His grip and umbrella were on the table. Sam went to the dresser and taking from it a photograph cut out the head and shut it in the back of his watch case. It was the head of Sue Emerson. He heard the cab stop in front of the house, and, pulling his hat down over his eyes, he started out, nearly falling over a small boy in a blue uniform standing in his path. A dirty hand passed Sam a yellow envelope.

"Sign here, sir."

Sam signed his name on the blank indicated, tore open the envelope, read the message and then raced down the stairs. Umbrella, grip and trunk remained behind.

"Emerson's. — Eighty-first street," he shouted to the driver as he stepped into the cab.

The chambermaid walked into the room just vacated by Congdon.

"Would ye mind these bits of yellow paper flying around," she murmured to herself. With a maid's curiosity she put them neatly together and read:

I need you more than Liverpool does. SUE.

An Amused Queen.

At a children's party at Buckingham palace the other day a little incident occurred which furnished Queen Alexandra, who is very fond of children, with considerable amusement. One of the small people present, a three-year-old son of Lady Lurgan's, has a passion for soldiers and was showing his appreciation for the scarlet-colored military bandmen who were playing in the garden by picking daisies and presenting them. Presently the queen chanced to pass by and graciously asked the small boy to give her a daisy. The youngster looked her majesty over and compared her quiet gown with the gay uniform he admired, then firmly replied, "No, grass for you," and handed the queen a tiny handful of grass.

The Newest Slang Word.

Chefu has been added to our vernacular. In the east when anybody relates some astounding tale the cry of "That's a Chefu!" greets it. As Chefu has turned out some of the most terrific rumors war was ever blessed with it wouldn't be strange if the name of the enterprising place was thus immortalized. So if you don't care to say to a man frankly, "You're a liar," why just call him a Chefu. He will appreciate it just as well. Besides it sounds less rude.—Kansas City Journal.

The Childishness of Love

[Original.]

In 1895 there was a girl named Marguerite Bourneval in France who had then been asleep or in a trance for eleven years. Corinne Butterfield, a little Yankee girl, went to sleep one night and did not awaken for ten years, but when she did awake she found as great a change in her surroundings as did Rip Van Winkle after his long slumber.

One night as Corinne was going to bed she was very badly frightened. She had lain her doll down on the bed, where it would be beside her when she slept, and had said her prayers when a burglar entered the room. Corinne lost consciousness and from that time forward lived in a trance. Her mother would not permit anything in the room to be changed, and when ten years later Corinne awoke there about her were the same walls, curtains, furniture—indeed, everything—just as it had been when she had gone to sleep ten years before, even to her doll beside her. There was no one in the room when she emerged from her trance, and she was obliged to get her bearings as best she could. She had no remembrance of her fright, but it seemed to her that she had passed a very bad night, sleeping heavily. She drew her doll up to her, but somehow it did not seem to have the same place in her affections as the night before. She sat up in bed, and there in the mirror on the dress, where she had been used to seeing herself reflected, was the image of a girl of twenty.

Corinne started. Who was that lovely creature with a long coil of plaited hair hanging over her shoulder? From the image she turned to herself and saw that her limbs and body had grown, her breast had filled out—indeed, she was a woman. And by looking from herself to the reflection she was soon convinced that she and it were one and the same.

It would be impossible to portray the feelings of this girl, so suddenly awakened to the fact that since what was to her the night before she had become a woman. On a chair beside her bed was a complete set of clothing which her mother had always kept there, changing it as Corinne grew older and larger. Getting out of bed, she sat on a chair—for she did not at once dare stand—put on the clothes and as soon as she had done so, holding on to the furniture as she proceeded, left her room.

When Corinne had gone to sleep she had a little sweetheart, Bennie Hoyt, a fine little fellow thirteen years old. Bennie had watched the sleeper, seeing her grow from childhood to womanhood, and the love of a boy had passed to that of a man. He was used to coming to the house where lay his sleeping love every morning before going to business. When Corinne reached the landing and was about to go down stairs the front door opened, and a young man entered. Looking up, he saw her. A thrill of joy lighted up his face. He stretched out his arms to her and exclaimed, "Thank God!"

Corinne stood holding on to the banister, while the man, quickly mounting the stairs, took her in his arms, drew her to his breast and covered her face with kisses.

Corinne's sensations at this treatment were very different from anything she had ever experienced before. There was nothing unusual in being kissed by a man—she had sat on a man's lap, with her arms around his neck—but now these caresses brought the blood to her cheek.

"Tell me," she exclaimed, "who are you? Who am I? What does it all mean?"

"You have slept for ten years," he said. "Come; I will tell you all about it."

Young Hoyt was eager to spread the good news that the sleeper had been awakened, but there was no one just then in the house except the servants, so he led Corinne downstairs to the library, where he told her of her scare of ten years before, how it had thrown her into a trance, how she had been cared for by those nearest to her and how his childish affection of a decade before had grown while she slept to the love of a man.

"And now, dear heart," he said, "your love for me has stood still. I shall have to win you as a man. This I hope to do, and soon you will be my wife."

"And shall we have a little house of our own, with dinner sets and furniture and a place for dolls?"

The last few words were spoken hesitatingly, with a glimmer of consciousness that her doll would give place to a doll of a different kind. She blushed and hid her face on his breast.

Hoyt started. He had often thought of this awakening and had endeavored to prepare himself for a mind that had not been developed with the body. He had feared that Corinne's deficiency would dissolve the love he bore her.

Some one has said that lovers are nothing more than grown children. Hoyt discovered that, instead of wishing to bring Corinne up to his standard, he, as a lover, sank to hers. She was to him "my sweet little girl," "my own pet," "dear bunny." A dozen times a day he asked her: "Are you growing to love me?" "Are you sure you don't love any one else?" "Would you miss me if I should go away?" "What would I do if I should lose my little birdie?"

The courtship was a long one, for Corinne must condense eight or nine years' schooling into three or four. When she was twenty-three they were married and began to talk about practical things like men and women. But, had it not been that lovers are children, when she awoke Hoyt would have left her for a mentally developed woman.

A PUNCTURED IDYL.

The Romantic Maiden Was Shocked by Businesslike Young Man.

They had met at the popular summer resort upon the shore of the beautiful inland lake and for two weeks had been almost daily companions. But on the morning he would have to leave—to go back again to the busy town and slave at his desk.

They sat upon a piece of plank and tossed pebbles in the water for a while, and both became absorbed in thought.

She dug little holes in the beach with the end of her parasol, and he ever and anon placed a hand over his heart, as if to make sure that it was still in the right place.

They were all alone, half a mile from the hotel and the little cluster of cottages.

The excursion steamer out upon the glassy bosom of the lake tooted mournfully as it approached the dock. Then the maiden sighed and, leaning over so that her breath fanned his cheek, asked in tones but little above a whisper:

"What are you thinking of?"

He turned toward her, as if suddenly aroused from some distressing dream:

"I was thinking," he replied, "that I shall go home tomorrow without having had a chance to use more than half of the commutation tickets I bought on that boat."

Three seconds later they started in single file back toward the hotel—Cleveland Leader.

How the Waiter Lost a Tip.

At one of the Kansas City hotels where the colored waiters give especially good service, but always expect adequate remuneration for the same from the guests, a waiter was especially officious the other day in serving a man from whom he expected a liberal tip. When the meal had been served and he was standing off at one side eagerly looking for an opportunity to be of service, he said to the guest:

"Didn't you have a brothah beah last week, sah?"

"No," said the one addressed; "I believe not."

"Well," continued the waiter, "thet was a gemman beah at mah table, and he was so well pleased with the service that he gave me 50 cents when he left."

The guest had by this time finished his meal, and as he arose he said to the expectant servant:

"Come to think of it, Sam, that was my brother that was here, and I guess he paid you for the whole family. He may be back again in a week or two."

Little Things.

When De Lancy Nicoll emerged from law school a friend recommended him to an eminent lawyer, who took him into his office.

After some time he announced his intention of establishing an office of his own.

"The lawyer is sorry you are going to leave him," said his friend. "He would like you to stay. You have done several little things very well for him, he told me."

Mr. Nicoll stared at him in some amazement.

"He called them 'little things,' he" he exclaimed. "Well, one of them was—I got him his divorce. '—New York Times.

EMERGENCY RATION

A man has lived forty days without other food than his own fat.

Fat is man's emergency ration. The fat is stored in convenient hollows all over the body against the day of necessity.

Consumption makes heavy demand on the storage of fat. Nature uses fat to fight the disease. The crying need of the consumptive is fat.

Scott's Emulsion contains the best fat to be had, next to human fat itself. Scott's Emulsion is a natural substitute for human fat. It prevents waste. It furnishes the consumptive with nature's own weapon for fighting the disease.

GAVE PRETTY DAUGHTER TO HIS FARM HAND

Girl Who Was Recently in Newark With Another Lover Was Located in Marion and is Now the Bride of Her Father's Employee at Marysville.

Miss Jennie Easterday of Harrisburg, Union county, was married to Mathew Patch of Marysville at the home of Justice of the Peace Wesley A. Gairard and thereby ends a sensational tale. About two weeks ago Jennie, aged 17 years and quite beautiful, supposedly left the parental roof at Harrisburg, presumably with Charles Williams of Delaware, Ohio, with whom she was supposed to be in love. The two were traced to Newark by the police, where they attempted to procure a marriage license and were unable to do so on account of the girl's age. Later upon receipt of a message from Marysville, an effort was made to find the girl in this city but she had left town. Later her father John Easterday learned that she was in Marion and informed Mr. Patch, who works for him on his farm, that if he would go and get the girl he might marry her. The proposition seemed to be a fine and enticing one for Mr. Patch, for he immediately left and came back triumphantly with the girl. He lost no time in taking her to Marysville where they were made man and wife by Squire Gairard.

LAD BADLY INJURED

Ten Years Old Son of Charles Slack Who Was Nearly Killed in a Runaway Meets With Another Accident—The News of Granville.

Granville, O., Oct. 6.—The condition of Cashier Charles Slack's ten year old son, John, is very serious today as a result of an accident Wednesday. His face and neck are horribly burned and both eyes are closed. It is believed he has lost the sight of one eye. The lad secured possession of an old powder horn and went to the orchard where he touched a lighted match to the powder. In the explosion the boy was frightfully burned. Not long ago the lad was nearly killed in a runaway accident.

New Gas Wells. Granville, O., Oct. 6.—The Crawford Natural Gas company has located two wells in Union township, and will begin the work of drilling at once. The gas will be piped to Granville. The right of way has already been secured to lay a four-inch pipe from the new gas field to Granville, on the Lancaster road. The company expect to drill in these wells in about four weeks, and the work of laying the pipe line will be commenced at once. It is now pretty certain that Granville will soon be supplied with plenty of gas. The gas has heretofore been supplied by the Logan Natural Gas company, but their contract expired October 1. Consumers in Granville, however, will be supplied by the Logan company until the new line is completed. The Union township gas field is a very promising one, and the company will lay the mains to Granville before the two wells are drilled in. By this arrangement Granville will be independent, and will have a bountiful supply of gas, and will not be dependent upon gas brought from a long distance.

Forthrightly Club.

The regular meeting of the Fortnightly club was held at the home of Miss Amelia Owen on Tuesday, Oct. 4. After the roll call Miss Annabel Owen discussed Bryant as a writer, Mrs. Thompson following with outlines of "Autumn Woods" and "The African Chief." Miss Monroe then discussed Japan, ancient and medieval, tracing in an interesting manner the descent of the present race from the aborigines, the first inhabitants of the Island.

Mrs. Cook took the ladies of the club through the many shops of Japan which line the streets, allowing each one time for purchase. She very carefully led them through the many streets, pointing out the points of interest, watchful lest they become lost, for the streets seemed much alike.

Mrs. J. D. Jones next discussed the "Evolution of the Government," proving that as the government is, so are the people. Beginning with the earliest form she told in an interesting manner the changes which have brought about the present form.

Miss Richardson closed the program with current news.

The guests of the club were Miss Bertie Jones, Mrs. Slinger, Miss Vance, Miss Haughey of Newark, Mrs. Nutting and Mrs. David Owens. The club adjourned to meet with Mrs. T. F. Wright October 18.

Mr. Rogers and the interment was made in Maple Grove cemetery.

Rev. Frank Gilliland, former pastor of the Methodist church of this place, left today for his new charge in Portsmouth, O. The best wishes of his many friends here accompany him and his estimable family.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the First Methodist church of Newark, which has the largest congregation of any church in this city, Miss Pearl Ferguson of this place was re-elected leading soprano.

THE COURTS

PETITION IN RIDER WILL CASE IS FILED.

Miss Roche Wants Let Which She Claims as Her Own—Realty Transfers—Notes.

In the case of the State of Ohio on relation of Clementine Roche against Benjamin Franklin and John M. Swartz as executors and trustees of the will and estate of Joseph Rider, deceased, the plaintiff has filed a petition for mandamus in the Common Pleas court. The relator, Clementine Roche, says that her father, Joseph Rider, departed this life testate on the 17th day of March, 1901, leaving a will which was duly admitted to probate on March 26, 1901, and upon that day letters testamentary were issued to the defendants, the executors and trustees named in the will, by the Probate court, and they have ever since been acting as such executors and trustees. The plaintiff says that her father devised to her in lot 42 in the Deshler & Sinks addition to the city of Columbus, O., for and during her natural life, and at her death to the heirs of her body, and if she dies without such heirs living, then he gave and devised the premises to his heirs at law then living.

The plaintiff says that at the time of the death of her father there were taxes due and payable on said lot, and which were a lien thereon, which the defendants, as executors and trustees, neglected and failed to pay when they became due and payable, and allowed the same to become delinquent, and the property was sold to pay the taxes and penalties. She says they still refuse, or offer, to pay the same, to the purchaser, or to redeem the property. Plaintiff therefore prays for a writ of mandamus to compel the defendants, as such executors and trustees to pay off and discharge the tax title to the purchaser, and to redeem the lot for her, free and unincumbered, or that they advance her a sufficient sum of money to enable her to redeem the same and save her life estate from being forfeited for the non-payment of said taxes, and for all other relief to which she may be entitled. Charles F. Follett and B. F. McDonald are attorneys for the plaintiff.

THE COUNTY FAIR

Good Sized Crowd in Attendance on Thursday to Enjoy the Sights--Racing Begins--Schools are to be Dismissed Friday at Noon.

Thursday, which is always the big day of the Licking County Fair, blossomed bright and beautiful, and at an early hour of the day there was every indication that the crowd at the Fair would be all that could be asked for. The early morning trains brought in large crowds, while there was a perfect stream of vehicles, all crowded with humanity. By noon there was a jam of people on the grounds and it is estimated that the crowd in attendance numbered at least 15,000.

The large crowd in attendance caused the faces of the managers of the Fair to be wreathed in smiles, especially those of the president, Mr. W. H. Kusemaul, and Secretary J. M. Farmer, who have labored so unceasingly for the past few weeks.

The number of exhibitors at the Fair this year is very large. In machinery hall are found exhibits of farm machinery, implements and wagons, while the fruit display is one of the largest and most complete ever seen at any former exhibition. Large and luscious pears and peaches and an abundance of apples, grapes and plums are spread out on the tables for the inspection of visitors and show conclusively that the product of Licking county orchards is equal to that of any part of the state.

In the poultry department the display is unusually fine, and there has certainly been something doing this season among the lovers of the feathered tribe. The winners of prizes this time will find that they have won in the face of great competition, and the big exhibit will doubtless prove a stimulus to the class whose birds have proven inferior to the premium takers. The live stock department never contained a more attractive display of live stock in all departments than it does this year. The horse stalls are filled with some of the best specimens of the equine family ever seen here.

The cattle sheds are well filled with some of the finest strains of beef and milch and butter cattle of this and adjoining counties, while the sheep and swine pens contain many fine specimens to attract the admirers of their class.

A vast amount of amusement has been provided for everybody, and all are having a splendid time. The stock department, poultry show, etc., is much larger than ever before, while the merchants' exhibits are much larger than usual, and the Fair this year promises to eclipse and fair held for years.

The splendid Buckeye band of Newark, which had been engaged to furnish the music for Thursday and Friday, gave the people in attendance at the fair a musical treat.

There was a great race program on Thursday, the racing beginning earlier than was announced on account of the races having been declared off on Wednesday.

In view of the fact that the enjoyment of the school children attending the Fair on Wednesday was greatly marred by the heavy rain, and that they failed to see any of the races, the Board of Education has decided to dismiss the schools Friday at noon, in order to give the children the afternoon to see the big show. Another big crowd of school children will therefore visit the Fair Friday afternoon.
